BACKGROUND INFORMATION

PUBLIC LAW | HUMAN RIGHTS | LEGAL ACTION

The Public Interest Law Centre (PILC) was initially set up in 2016 as a project of Lambeth Law Centre, starting by representing core participants in the Undercover Policing Inquiry (UCPI). As Lambeth Law Centre became insolvent in July 2019, PILC incorporated as a company limited by guarantee and started to act as an agent of Camden Community Law Centre (CCLC) for Legal Aid purposes. This hosting arrangement will continue until a new tender is advertised by the Legal Aid Agency (circa 2022). In November 2020, PILC became registered as a Charitable Incorporated Organisation in England and Wales (No: 1192355).

Mission

PILC exists to challenge systemic injustice. We do this by holding government and public bodies to account and promoting access to justice for dispossessed and excluded groups. PILC specialises in:

- Legal Representation in public law, claims against public authorities and public inquiries
- Strategic Litigation
- Legal Education
- Research & Advocacy

We represent individuals and communities who have been unfairly or unlawfully treated by public institutions. We use the law creatively and assertively through strategic litigation. We work closely with grassroots groups, campaigners and frontline organisations.

Why PILC exists

In the last 10 years, government has enacted a politics of austerity and passed legislation to create a hostile environment for migrants with enormous consequences for individuals and marginalised communities who were already at the bottom of the economic and social scale or on the margins of citizenship. Welfare provision has been drastically reduced whilst government departments operate as gatekeepers, a well-documented practice that has seen vulnerable people die after being told they were 'fit for work'. Immigration law continues to grow in complexity and many vulnerable people have borne the brunt of a brutal immigration system, whether they were British black people from the Windrush generation or EU homeless people who had fallen on hard times. Austerity has also forced Local Authorities – who derive much of their budgets from central government - into making substantial budgetary cuts to local services, from social care to housing provision via libraries and youth centres. They have also sold public land and other community assets to compensate and raise necessary funds.

Our Approach

PILC promotes a rights-based approach that does not limit itself to defending ever more restricted rights. Instead it seeks to expand fundamental rights for those who struggle to live with dignity and bring about wider social change. PILC works in partnership with grassroots groups and larger frontline organisations across various sectors through a 'Legal Hub' model that includes the following activities:

- Provision of 2nd-tier advice & complex casework
- Capacity building by providing training and advocacy tools to improve quality of advice work
- Research that includes problem-identifying sessions with partners by reviewing trends and common issues in casework; monitoring policy developments; feeding into legal action
- Strategic litigation, challenging unlawful policies and practices at local and national levels
- Strategic Communications – influencing at local and regional level, publicising legal successes and working with sector partners to ensure their implementation, amplifying rights-based methodologies via traditional and social media

Achievements

Through its litigation work, PILC has enabled settled migrants to access student finance (2018), prevented the sale of Southall Town Hall, an iconic building used by community groups (2018), forced the Home Office to provide destitute migrants on immigration bail a way to be supported (2019), ended Lambeth Council's deceitful housing scheme that pushed homeless families out of borough (2020), compelled government to release £76 million ring-fenced funding to the Violence Against Women & Girls sector during C-19 first lockdown (2020) and successfully challenged LB Camden's use of mixed-gender accommodation for women escaping domestic abuse (2021). Most recently, PILC defended Ricky Tomlinson and Arthur Murray (members of the Shrewsbury 24) in the Court of Appeal, which saw their 47-year old convictions quashed.

PILC continues to act on behalf of campaigners challenging the low number of social housing being provided as part of the regeneration of the Elephant & Castle shopping centre. PILC has also put the Home Office on notice in regards to its latest amendment to the Immigration Rules, which makes 'rough sleeping' a ground to refuse or cancel someone's right to remain in the UK.

PILC also continues to represent a number of individuals and groups in the Undercover Policing Inquiry, including the Stop the War coalition and ex-members of the SWP.

Our People

PILC is co-led by Jean Demars (Director) who oversees strategic, operational and financial management and Paul Heron (Senior Solicitor) who oversees legal matters, which includes casework management, litigation strategy and Legal Aid contract management. He is further supported by Helen Mowatt (Supervising Solicitor) who completes the management team.

PILC currently employs 9 staff with a number of volunteers supporting our core work and projects. We are now planning to strengthen the litigation team with the recruitment of a Paralegal and a part-time Solicitor.

Our Trustees

The Law Centre's Trustees are Suzanne Muna (Chair), Sean Canning (Treasurer) and Niall Mulholland. The Board has ambitious plans to recruit further members during the next year with the requisite skills, experience and diversity to ensure the good governance and stewardship of PILC continues into the next phase of our development.

Lexcel accreditation

PILC are in the process of finalising its operational procedures ahead of our goal to attain Lexcel accreditation during 2021. Lexcel is a legal quality management standard, and one of the two possible standards that must be obtained in order to tender for a contract from the Legal Aid Agency. For current Legal Aid purposes, we continue to operate as an agent of Camden Community Law Centre through which we have access to Public Law and Claims against Public Authorities contracts.

We anticipate being ready to tender for a LAA contract in Public Law in our own right when the next round of tenders are opened.

Registrations and memberships

PILC is registered with the Solicitors Regulation Authority and the Law Society. We are also a member of the Law Centres Network, AdviceUK and the Legal Aid Practitioners Group.
